The graph shows the accuracy of Naive Bayes training as a function of the size of the training set. The accuracy increases as the size of the training set grows, reaching a peak around 500 data points before stabilizing or slightly decreasing as the size of the training set increases further.