EXAMPLES OF INTERESTING PROJECTS

- Creating a data "lake" of pan-Thomson Reuters content - leveraging our knowledge of how to link our data and other public data to provide new insights.
- Building analytics to surface connections between entities not explicitly defined in content. E.g., analyzing how political events in one country may affect the companies doing business in that country.
- Going beyond Natural Language Processing tools to model higher cognitive processes to extract more valuable information, to generate naturally sounding text and develop algorithms to summarize complex content.
- Building a Social Analysis platform for ingestion, filtering & mining social data. Used for things like event detection for Reuters news or sentiment analysis for financial trading.
- Building enterprise class SaaS applications for professionals and businesses.
